ATS EARNS ISO/SN 9001 CERTIFICATION

Huntingdon Valley, PA January 12, 2015 – About Time Snow has been serving eastern Pennsylvania area since 1994. About Time Snow is protecting the well-being of their clients and the tenants that work at their commercial, retail and industrial properties with true winter risk management services. The company believes in education and certification and has once again set themselves ahead of the competition by pursuing and obtaining ISO certification.

ISO 9001 is a set of international standards for management and verification of good quality management practices. The International Organization for Standardization is an international organization that certifies that businesses meet certain common standards. The name ISO was taken from the Greek "isos" meaning "equal," and is used without alteration in every language in all countries which participate.

ASCA LEGISLATIVE DAYS

You don't often think about snow and ice management contractors hob knobbing with politicians on Capitol Hill but that is exactly what many contractors will be doing on July 19 -21. The Accredited Snow Contractors Association (ASCA) is active on both the state and federal level, helping contractors to meet with their state representatives to discuss poorly written laws and high insurance costs that occur because of the current laws.

"Frivolous lawsuits hurt everyone," says Stephen Summer, President and CEO of About Time Snow. "The majority of slip and fall lawsuits are nuisance claims and insurance companies pay these claims because it is cheaper to do so than to go to court. This not only affects those in the snow and ice management profession but property owners and managers as well as the cost of insurance skyrockets. We are dedicated to our profession and support the legislative actions of the ASCA," Summer continued.

Members of the About Time Snow team joined other contractors and the ASCA recently to meet with Pennsylvania State Representative Paul Schemel and discuss the Lawsuit Abuse Reduction Act and encourage him to support the bill. "It is extremely powerful to meet with our elected representatives in person and educate them on the impact our unique service has on society, as well as discuss with them ways we can collaborate to improve the professional snow and ice management industry" says Kevin Gilbride, executive director of ASCA.

MIKE BOYTIN ACHIEVES CERTIFICATION

Huntingdon Valley, PA, May 14, 2015 – The Accredited Snow Contractors Association (ASCA) announced today that Mike Boytin of About Time Snow in Huntingdon Valley, PA has successfully achieve ASCA-C certification. He had to pass 10 exam modules to achieve certification.

Jenn Bubba, COO of About Time Snow stated "In today's competitive world of snow and ice management, we are no longer plow jockeys, but risk managers. Mike's dedication to serving our clientele in a professional fashion is the reason for his working to achieve personal certification through this association of snow professionals. This truly sets Mike apart from others who provide such services in as much as he has proven that he knows how true snow professionals should operate on behalf of our clients."
